MICHEL—Flo

COUSIN OF SPINSTER INHERITS FORTUNE

Man Who Gets $5,000,000 to Spend More Time Helping to Ease U. S. Foreign Crises

Hollis Powers Gale of 68-60 108th Street, Forest Hills, Queens, inherited approximately $5,000,000 yesterday and announced that he would like to "spend more time in the future helping in what ways I can to improve our foreign relations."

He designated the Far East as his special sphere of interest. Saying he felt that our policies had not worked out too well there so far, he added that he hoped for better. "Of course, whatever I could do would be infinitesimal—just a pin-prick, but every pin-prick counts," he said.

He was in China in 1940 as American Red Cross director for the South, he said, was captured by the Japanese and interned at Stanley Prison. He came back to this country on the first exchange trip of the liner Gripsholm, along with the then Ambassador Joseph C. Grew. Later, he was with the China Desk of the Office of Strategic Services.

Mr. Gale's inheritance, which will be scaled down by about half as a result of Federal Inheritance and New York Estate taxes, was confirmed in a decision yesterday of Surrogate William T. Collins in upholding his claim to the estate of a cousin, the late Miss Mary Bullock Powers.

The decision directs the immediate distribution of the $5,000,000 left by the 72-year-old spinster to Mr. Gale.

"It conclusively appears that the decedent was not survived on her maternal side by any persons in the first through the fifth degree of relationship," the court said. "Upon review of all the evidence, the court holds that there is no person who survived the decedent, either on her paternal or maternal side, who is equally or more closely related to her than the objectant, Hollis Powers Gale.

"The court finds that Hollis Powers Gale is the decedent's sole distributee, entitled to inherit the entire estate, and directs that distribution be made to him."

Mr. Gale said on the subject of the decision, "I am, of course, pleased. It is particularly gratifying because she had always anticipated that after the death of my father, George Powers Gale, I would inherit her estate. He and she were first cousins and were very fond of each other."

Mr. Gale is an official of the United Board and Carton Company of 285 Madison Avenue.

Miss Powers died on July 20,

1948, in her $30-a-day suite in the Seymour Hotel in this city. She lived there for twenty-six years as a recluse, reading no newspapers, listening to no radio, and receiving no visitors but a waiter, her lawyer, occasionally Mr. Gale and from time to time an official of the Bank of New York and Fifth Avenue Bank.

There were 173 claims to her estate, but by last November the court had eliminated all the claimants but Mr. Gale. These included two who said they were her sons, two who said they were sisters, and others claiming to be aunts, nieces, grandnieces and cousins of varying degree.

The court was aided in reaching its decision and tracing the intricate degrees of relationship through a thirty-two-foot family-tree chart prepared for it by Joseph A. Cox, counsel for the Public Administrator, who was appointed to handle the estate after Miss Powers had been found dead of natural causes in her suite.

Mr. Gale comes of a family descended from pioneer settlers of New England. "American for 300 years," he said last night. He was graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy and the University of Pennsylvania, class of '13. He worked for Wall Street firms and served in the first World War as an ambulance driver overseas. He is married and has one daughter.

HOLLIS POWERS GALE

$5,000,000 Won't Dazzle Powers Heir

A $5,000,000 windfall from the estate of a spinster cousin will make little difference in his way of life, Hollis Powers Gale, 58, of 68-10 108th St., Forest Hills, opined today.

But it will enable him to devote more time trying to improve our foreign relations, especially in the Far East, where he's no stranger.

Mr. Gale, an executive of the United Board & Carton Co., 285 Madison Ave., was designated sole heir to the estate of Miss Mary B. Powers, 72-year-old recluse, who died two years ago in the Hotel Seymour, 50 W. 44th St.

Secluded 26 Years.

For 26 years she lived alone in a five-room suite, ignoring the world and having no visitors, except the waiter who served her meals, the manager who collected her rent, her lawyer and, occasionally, Mr. Gale.

After she died there were 173 claimants to Miss Powers' estate. Surrogate William T. Collins finally eliminated all except Mr. Gale, whose father was Miss Powers' first cousin.

"I am, of course, pleased with the court's decision," he said. "This is particularly gratifying because Miss Powers always anticipated that after the death of my father I would inherit her estate."

To Aid in Far East.

"I intend to spend more time helping in what ways I can to improve our foreign relations, especially in the Far East, where we have made a mess of it."

Mr. Gale, who is married and has a married daughter in California, went to China as American Red Cross director at Hong Kong in 1940. He was imprisoned by the Japs in Stanley Prison. Subsequently, after being repatriated, he served in the Office of Strategic Services, handling Far Eastern affairs.

He is a director of the China Institute of America and the China Society of America.

Bryn Mawr Girl Vanishes On Vacation Trip Home

Eastern Police Asked to Join Hunt For Socially Prominent Student

By the United Press.

BRYN MAWR, Pa., March 28.—Police throughout the East were asked today to search for tawny-haired Gertrude C. Nauman, 19-year-old socially prominent college girl who disappeared last Friday en route to her Harrisburg (Pa.) home for a spring vacation.

The tall, slender girl and three companions at exclusive Bryn Mawr College rode to the railroad station here in a taxicab after classes Friday afternoon.

In the station waiting room, however, Miss Nauman decided to catch a later train, so she could shop in adjoining Ardmore or nearby Philadelphia. She telegraphed her parents to meet her when the Manhattan Limited arrived in Harrisburg at 6:13 p.m.

She has not been seen since. Police said they had no clues.

Her father, Spencer Gilbert Nauman, law-firm executive, said he and his wife were mystified.

"We do not know of any reason for her disappearance," he said.

"We do not believe she eloped," her mother said. "To my knowledge my daughter had no particular romances, so we are discounting that."

"She would have notified us if she could," she added.

Miss Nauman was described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds. She wore a gray suit, shoes and hat and a tan, fur-trimmed trench coat.

NAVY ENDS INFORMED PLAN

Connie Palmer, Waiter 50 Years in Princeton

Special to the Herald Tribune 1956

PRINCETON, N. J., March 7.—

Connie Palmer, a waiter known to Princeton undergraduates and graduates for nearly a half century, died today at his home, 14 Jackson Street. He had worked at the old Nassau Inn until it was demolished in 1937, when he went to the Nassau Tavern.

Mr. Palmer was much in demand at the annual June reunions of Princeton classes, when graduates would get him a temporary leave of absence from his regular job. With his chest covered with buttons of graduating classes, he was a familiar figure waiting on tables at such festivities.

Mr. Palmer was born in Asheville, N. C. No one knew his age. He always said he didn't know himself, and that it was unimportant anyway. Surviving are his wife; a son, Connie Palmer jr., and two sisters, Mrs. Josephine Hughes and Miss Frances Palmer.

Parsons, of 141 East Seventy-second Street, Manhattan, an aunt of Miss Peacock.

Mrs. John J. O'Connor jr., twin sister of the bride-to-be, will be matron of honor. Mr. Howland Hayes will be best man and Mr. Peter Emmons and Mr. Rolland Peacock jr., will be ushers.

C. PALMER, 43 YEARS A PRINCETON WAITER

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 7—

Connie Palmer, popular with Princeton University undergraduates and alumni as a waiter for more than forty years, died today at his Princeton home after a three-month illness. He never revealed his age, always insisting he did not know it.

In 1907 he went to work at the old Nassau Inn, since demolished, and worked there as a waiter and bell hop for thirty years. He had worked for the Nassau Tavern since it was built in 1937. Only once since 1907 did he leave Princeton. During the recent World War he made his contribution by working as a waiter in the officers mess at Camp Dix.

During the annual June reunions Connie always obtained temporary leave to serve in the reunion tents because of the great demand for his services. He was a particular favorite of the classes of 1912 and 1915, but was often photographed with his shirt front bedecked with buttons representing all the classes.

He is survived by his widow, a son and two sisters.

Offer Reward For Lost Girl

Gertrude Nauman

Missing student.

Philadelphia, April 3 (AP).—The parents of attractive 19-year-old Gertrude Nauman, missing Bryn Mawr College junior, today offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to her return.

The girl, daughter of socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Gilbert Nauman of Harrisburg, disappeared March 24 after cashing $200 in traveler's checks and wiring her parents she would be home for the Spring holiday.

Reports had circulated on the campus that she would be back in school when it resumed today. Some of her classmates intimated she spent the free time with friends without notifying her family.

JUDGE IS THREATENED, COURT ROOM GUARDED

Judge Louis Goldstein's part in King's County Court had the added protection yesterday of twelve detectives as the result of telephone threats made against the jurist following the sentencing on Tuesday of three men to long prison terms.

Judge Goldstein, who is presiding at the first-degree murder trial of Jack Parisi, alleged triggerman for the defunct "Murder, Inc.," gang, had the court room cleared of all spectators. In explanation of his action, he said later that threats had been received over his unlisted telephone at his home and in his chambers.

The case involved Joseph Russo, 27 years old, of 166 Elizabeth Street; Rocco Paoluci, 33, of 9 Spring Street, and William Napolitano, 24, of 380 Broome Street. The three had pleaded guilty to the armed robbery of thirteen employees of the Camella Printers Ink Company, 532 Sixty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, three months ago.

In the Parisi trial, the prosecution completed its case with the testimony of Bennie Siegel, 22, of 1789 Sixty-eighth Street, Brooklyn. He testified that he had heard the shots that killed Morris Diamond, teamsters' union official, on May 25, 1939, at Eighteenth Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street.

The witness said that Parisi "looked like" the man he saw running away from the scene, but, under cross examination, he admitted that soon after the shooting he had identified Benjamin Tanenbaum, a Bronx hoodlum, now dead, as the man.

The trial will continue this morning.

FORRESTAL TRIBUTE SLATED FOR TODAY

Friends, Headed by Johnson, to Visit Arlington Grave—
Memorial Plan Pushed

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, May 21—With no formal ceremony—in his lifetime he dreaded all pomp—friends of James Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense, will pay private tribute tomorrow to the quiet, devoted man whose selflessness cost him his life.

Singly and in small groups the friends of Mr. Forrestal will honor his memory at a grave in the Arlington National Cemetery.

Among Government officials who will visit the plainly marked plot on an oak-surrounded knoll beneath the Lee Mansion and overlooking the Potomac will be Louis Johnson, Mr. Forrestal's successor in the then controversy-torn National Military Establishment. Mr. Johnson, who often tells of his debt to Mr. Forrestal who introduced him realistically to the problems that would confront him in endeavors to achieve unification, will place a wreath on the grave.

Grave Is Among Heroes

Mr. Forrestal's widow, who has been in Europe, also will visit the grave, which is No. 674 in an officer section of the nation's resting place for its heroes.

A year ago tomorrow, Mr. Forrestal fell to his death from a room in the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., where for several months he had been undergoing treatment for a severe depression that doctors had likened to battle fatigue. He had resigned as Secretary of Defense on March 28, physically and mentally broken from the exhausting regimen he set for himself in trying to solve the armed services differences and to provide for the nation's security.

At the head of Mr. Forrestal's grave is a three-and-a-half foot plain marble marker. The inscription states his birth date, Feb. 15, 1892, the date of death, and contains the words "Lt., U. S. N. R. S. World War I."

Friends have not waited for the anniversary of his death for a pilgrimage. A few days ago Lewis L. Strauss, who recently resigned as one of the five members of the Atomic Energy Commission, visited Arlington.

He told of finding the marble marker, that replaced the original wooden headboard that was set up the day of Mr. Forrestal's funeral, amid the similar stones that "mark the serried legions of private soldiers and sailors in all our cemeteries."

Mr. Strauss, a rear admiral in World War II, recalled to associates later how another friend, Mervyn Bennion, captain of the battleship West Virginia, had died in the attack on Pearl Harbor. Some months later, Mr. Strauss recounted, he had received a brass direction marker from a bulkhead of the West Virginia. It read: "Forward and Up."

Recalling this legend to a meeting of the Military Order of the World Wars here, Mr. Strauss declared that "'Forward and up' might well have been the motto of James Forrestal, and that no man who fell at Pearl Harbor or on Guadalcanal, or in Leyte Gulf, Iwo Jima, or on the beaches of Normandy, was any more truly a casualty of this war than was the first Secretary of Defense.

War Record Extolled

"No man did more for his country in this war. No man served more selflessly, nor drove himself more exactingly. He set an example of diligence, devotion and high-mindedness that reached down through all the ranks and made service under him the sort of dedication that it must have been to those who served under the great commanders of our historic past," Mr. Strauss said.

He suggested that if the Order's regulations permitted an honor to Mr. Forrestal, to "the memory of a man, shy, retiring and intolerant of display," would be appropriate.

With the observance of the first Armed Services Day, Marx Leva, Assistant Secretary of Defense, in tracing the history of unification of the three armed services, declared that the history opens on Sept. 17, 1947, the date that Mr. Forrestal took the oath of office.

The name of James Forrestal, Mr. Leva said, ran "like a silver thread" through the successes of the United States in the last ten years.

The late Defense Secretary's contributions to national security, Mr. Leva declared, "will undoubtedly be properly recognized and adequately evaluated when historians come to write the history of this extraordinarily complex era in which we are living."

Members of the Forrestal Memorial Committee will meet tomorrow at the Pentagon Building to discuss plans for devoting about $29,000 to a project that would bear the name of the first Defense Secretary.

The funds were raised among the personnel of the armed services and the Department of Defense through $1 voluntary contributions.

Late last year the committee commissioned Kalervo Kallio, a Finnish sculptor, to do a bronze memorial bust. The committee announced that Mr. Kallio would receive $5,000 for the finished bronze, which will be placed at an entrance to the Pentagon.

Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris Dies; Was Widow of Envoy to Belgium

Was Active in Welfare and In Movement to Set Up International Language

Special to the Herald Tribune

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 15.—

Mrs. Alice Vanderbilt Shepard Morris, seventy-five, widow of Dave Hennen Morris, American Ambassador to Belgium and Minister to the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg from 1933 to 1937, died here today at her summer home. She lived in New York at 117 East Seventy-second Street.

Mrs. Morris was born in New York, the daughter of the late Margaret Louise Vanderbilt and Colonel Elliott Fitch Shepard, owner of "The New York Mail and Express." She was the great-granddaughter of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. She married Mr. Morris while he was still at Harvard University in 1895. Mr. Morris later became a close friend of the late President Roosevelt and helped manage his pre-convention campaign in 1895.

Sought International Language

She devoted much of her life's work to the establishing of an international language. In 1924 Mrs. Morris, with the help of her husband and a group of experts in communications and international affairs, founded the International Auxiliary Language Association. She believed that each person should learn, besides his native language, an auxiliary language that would be common in all parts of the world.

Mrs. Morris felt that the resources of modern scholarship in linguistics should work to adapt a language for international use, and she organized many conferences and enlisted the interest of linguists, psychologists, scientists and leaders in many fields in the problem. Mrs. Morris financed the major part of the research for the I. A. L. A., which is located at 420 Lexington Avenue, wrote magazine articles urging an international language and was the author of a series of monographs published by the Linguistic Society of America.

A dictionary of 27,000 words conceived by Mrs. Morris, containing the words common to many languages, as a basis for an international language, will be published this fall.

Honored by Syracuse U.

In 1931 Syracuse University awarded Mrs. Morris an honorary

Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris

Doctor of Letters degree. She was educated in private schools and at Radcliffe College. During World War I, she was one of the founders of the Young Women's Christian Association War Council, and she served as a member of the World Service Council of the Y. M. C. A. until her death. In 1928 she was chairman of the Leonard Wood Memorial Committee, which raised money for the care of lepers in the Philippines. While her husband was serving as ambassador, she was decorated by the King of the Belgians with the Order of Leopold I. During World War II, Mrs. Morris organized the Belgian War Relief Society. She was one of the founders of the Parents League of New York, a pioneer project in parent co-operation.

She was a member of the Colony Club, the Cosmopolitan Club, the American Association of University Women and the National Society of Colonial Daughters. Mrs. Morris was known for her beauty and a portrait painted by John Sargent in her childhood has been often shown in special exhibitions.

Surviving are two sons, Dave Hennen Morris jr. and Lawrence Morris; three daughters, Mrs. Dudley H. Mills, Mrs. Walter Knight Sturges jr. and Mrs. Hamilton Hadley, and a sister, Mrs. Shepard Fabbri. Another sister, Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin, died in 1948.
